Chinese White Dolphin

The Chinese White Dolphin lives in the sea. It eats fish. It eats neither shrimps nor octopuses. It can neither breathe underwater nor live out of water. It is deep grey in colour at birth. As it grows, it becomes white or light pink. It can grow up to 270 cm long and weight 250 kg.

The dolphin is endangered in Hong Kong waters. Water pollution, land reclamation and heavy boat traffic make it hard for the dolphin to live and find food.

Therefore, we should not throw any rubbish into the sea and reduce the papers which we throw away. Also, the government should reduce land reclamation. Besides, you can encourage your friends to take public transport.
