Two Students and the Wallet

This morning, I went to school by bus. Two students sat behind an old woman. I saw that they whispered to each other. I thought they wanted to steal the wallet.

After a while, the two students took the wallet from the old woman's bag. They felt nervous.

The old woman did not know she lost her wallet until she got off the bus. She felt angry because she lost her wallet and ID card.

At last, the old woman called the police. The old woman felt angry and worried unless she found her wallet. After a while, a policeman told the old woman that they caught the two students. Therefore, the old woman felt happy.
